

Dante Studies Style Guide

Dante Studies is the official annual of the Dante Society of America. Its editorial board welcomes submissions in English or Italian on all subjects connected with Dante's life, works, critical reception, and influence.

Articles of original scholarship between 7,000 and 10,000 words (including notes and appendices) should be submitted as Word documents. Submissions in English should use American English spelling, punctuation, vocabulary, idioms, and syntax. Please see the journal Italian style guide for information on Italian-language style conventions.

Dante Studies (DS) follows the Chicago Manual of Style (CMS), 18th Edition. Please consult the most recent edition for distinctive treatment of words and phrases, grammar, punctuation, style, and matters of bibliographic citation. The following notes highlight major style issues and clarify DS preferences where CMS offers choices or where DS practice deviates from CMS.

Guidelines for English Submissions

Formatting

Essays should be submitted as an email attachment in Word. Please include an abstract in English of up to 150 words with your submission as a separate Word attachment.

Essay should be submitted in Times New Roman and in 12 pt. font size, with the text double spaced. NB for essays accepted for publication: please convert all footnotes into endnotes.

For initial submissions, images may be embedded in a separate Word file and shared as an email attachment with figure numbers clearly matching where these appear in the text. NB for essays accepted for publication: see the image submission guidelines in this document.

Abbreviations

Do not use abbreviations until after the place name, title, work, or organization has been spelled out in full.

Do not use periods between US State abbreviations (e.g., US, not U.S.; MA, not M.A. or Mass).

In notes, avoid loc. cit. and op. cit. Use ibid. only to refer the reader to a single bibliographic item cited in the immediately preceding note. If more than one work is cited in the previous note, an abbreviated (author-short title) citation should be used.

Capitalizations

Capitalize specific Dantean concepts (e.g., Purgatory), but do not capitalize units of topographical structure (e.g., ninth bolgia of the eighth circle).

Certain terms designating historical, political, or cultural movements or periods are traditionally capitalized (e.g., High Middle Ages, the Renaissance, the Risorgimento).

Capitalize religious and theological concepts (e.g., the Annunciation). Terms designating sections of poems, plays, and the like should be capitalized only when used to cite particular sections (e.g., Canto 23, Book 4 of the Aeneid).

Capitalize personal titles that function as part of the name or can be used in direct address (e.g., King James of Majorca, Pope Boniface VIII).

Capitalize all principal words in foreign names of buildings (e.g., Teatro alla Scala). Note that translated names follow English conventions for capitalization; for example, Esposizione universale is rendered as Universal Exposition.

CMS capitalizes “Black” when it refers to racial and ethnic identity.

Title Conventions

Do not italicize an initial “the” in the names of periodicals (e.g., the New York Times).

Journal titles should remain in the original language (e.g., La bibliofilia).

Use headline style capitalization for titles of English-language books and articles. In general, citations of works in languages other than English should follow sentence-style capitalization: first word of title and subtitle and all proper nouns (e.g., Cecilia Cattaneo Barbieri, “Piccolo artigianato nella Firenze di Dante,” Nuova Antologia 88 [1953]). Note that Latin also capitalizes proper adjectives. Punctuation of foreign-language titles may be modified slightly to accord with American practice (e.g., by changing periods to colons before subtitles).

Titles within titles: In article citations, titles may be italicized as usual (e.g., “In Omnibus Viis Tuis: Compline in the Valley of the Rulers”). In book citations and other italicized titles, the embedded title may be enclosed in quotation marks. If embedded titles are clearly represented through capitalization, quotation marks surrounding the title are not necessary (e.g., La escatología musulmana en la Divina Comedia.)

Titles of Works by Dante

Dante Studies prefers the following styling for titles of works that appear frequently in Dante scholarship:

Works by Dante:

Convivio
Commedia
Inferno
Purgatorio
Paradiso
Monarchia
Vita nuova

When citing a poem, please style the title in roman between double quotation marks:

“Amor che ne la mente mi ragiona”
“Donna me prega”

Italics

Foreign words and phrases not in general usage should be italicized (e.g., canzoni), including Latin terms (e.g., cogito).

Italics are not used for foreign place-names (Rome), foreign proper names (Lucia), foreign proper nouns (Santa Maria Novella), or direct quotations from foreign languages.

Names

If a referenced individual is known by names in two or more languages, please indicate this in the first use using the full spelling of each name (e.g., no nicknames) and then regularize with one spelling for the remainder of the essay. Dante Studies prefers the following name spellings for individuals frequently referenced in Dante scholarship:

Jacopo della Lana
Averröes (Ibn Rushd)

Numbers and Dates

Spell out numbers one through ninety-nine and large round numbers (e.g., three hundred, ten thousand). In sentences including numbers both greater and smaller than ninety-nine, use one style or the other (e.g., 3 and 101 or three and one hundred and one).

Use arabic numerals instead of roman numerals (e.g., Paradiso 27 and Decameron 6.3).

Use roman numerals only for titles such as Charles V or Pope Nicholas III.

Inclusive page numbers are written as follows: 46–47; 100–5; 1234–37, 1290–321. Note, however, that for biographical date ranges both numbers should be given in full (e.g., 1313–1375, not 1313–75).

Dates should be expressed in the order of month, day, year: June 22, 2022 (not 22 June 2022). Centuries should be spelled out in full (e.g., fourteenth century, not 14th century).

Decades should be written out in full, either in numbers or words (e.g., the 1330s or the thirties, not the '30s).

Spell out designations for centuries and unit modifiers:

the fourteenth century; fourteenth-century works
the early/late fourteenth century; late fourteenth-century works the mid to late fourteenth century; mid to late fourteenth-century works the mid-1330s

Quotations

The Commedia is to be quoted according to a standard Italian critical edition of the text. Those of Giorgio Petrocchi (Milan: Mondadori, 1966–67; 2nd ed., 1994) or Federico Sanguineti (Florence: SISMEL, 2001) are currently recommended.

The journal does not include translations of Dante's Italian texts unless there is a special ad locum reason. Extracts from Latin texts, however, should be translated in the running text, with the original text given in notes or in parentheses between double quotation marks in the running text.

Include a single space on both sides of the solidus (e.g., “la quale è sì ’invilita, / che ogn’ om par che mi dica: ‘Io t’abandono,’”).

Double quotation marks (“ ”) should be used to enclose quotations; single quotation marks (‘ ’) are required for quotations within quotations.

In general, quotations longer than ninety words should be formatted as a block quote, indented and separated by a line space above and below. This does not apply to poetry, which can be formatted as a block quote at the author's discretion.

Spelling and Grammar

Submissions in English should use American English spelling, punctuation, vocabulary, idioms, and syntax, except in direct quotations. American English spelling is preferred for translations, especially those by the author and not sourced.

In alignment with CMS, Merriam-Webster's is DS's preferred dictionary for matters of spelling, capitalization, hyphenations, etc., with limited exceptions.

DS uses the series comma (e.g., Dante, Boccaccio, and Petrarch), and periods and commas preceding the closing double and single quotation marks (e.g., “century,”).

For possessives of singular nouns ending in s, including proper nouns, add an apostrophe and an s (e.g., Paris's apple).

With regard to hyphenation, DS favors closing compounds that sometimes appear hyphenated (e.g., preexisting).

DS can accommodate different spellings of various proper names (e.g., Folquet de Marseilles or Folchetto di Marsiglia), however usage should be consistent.

Citations

Dante Studies uses endnotes. There is no need to include a bibliography in addition to endnotes; however, authors must indicate the facts of publication in the first citation as completely as possible, including the edition of the work cited, any series information, and so forth.

After the initial citation, abbreviate to author plus short title for subsequent mentions of the same work (e.g., Moevs, Metaphysics, 164).

Following the 18th editions of the Chicago Manual of Style, Dante Studies does not include place of publication in citations.

BIBLICAL CITATIONS

Follow SBL (Society of Biblical Literature) style. Generally a colon divides chapter from verse, a semi-colon divides chapter from chapter, and a comma divides verse from verse. Passage should be placed in parentheses using the standard abbreviation for the biblical book, chapter, and verse (e.g., Mark 7:11). Abbreviated book names are not followed by a period. Multiple references in the same parentheses should be separated as in this example: (Eph 1:1, 12; Deut 21:23; Rom 8:1–4; 12:10). The book names should not be italicized.

Matthew 5:24–31 means chapter 5, verses 24 through 31.

Matthew 5:24–33:1 means chapter 5, verse 24, through chapter 33, verse 1.

Matthew 5–9 means chapters 5–9.

Matthew 5, 7, and 8 means chapter 5, chapter 7, and chapter 8.

Matthew 5:24, 29 means chapter 5, verses 24 and 29.

Matthew 5:24; 29 means chapter 5, verse 24 and chapter 29.

Guidelines for Italian Submissions

Norme Tipografiche

Dopo l'approvazione del comitato scientifico, i testi devono essere consegnati alla redazione nella loro forma definitiva, pronti per la stampa secondo le norme indicate di seguito. I testi giudicati inadeguati dal punto di vista redazionale saranno restituiti all'autore per eventuali necessarie correzioni. Eventuali deviazioni dalle seguenti norme devono sempre essere sottoposte a preventiva approvazione da parte del comitato redazionale.

I testi devono essere presentati in formato elettronico e inviati via e-mail alla redazione, utilizzando esclusivamente una versione recente di Word. Il testo base presentato in formato elettronico sarà composto con il carattere Times New Roman e dimensione 12. Per i caratteri greci, è necessario utilizzare un font Unicode (greco politonico). Per l'uso di segni o caratteri rari, l'editore deve contattare la Redazione.

Norme Generali

- Gli articoli devono essere inviati in formato Word e non devono superare le 10.000 parole, incluse le note.

- Uso di caporali: non sono ammessi;
- Uso di virgolette inglesi (“...”): per le citazioni più lunghe di novanta parole; per i titoli di articoli citati; quando si chiude una parola o frase tra virgolette, il punto fermo andrà sempre “dentro le virgolette di chiusura.”
- uso delle virgolette alte o apici (‘ ’): per le citazioni interne a citazioni; significati, accezioni ed espressioni particolari. Poiché l'uso particolare di un'espressione può anche essere evidenziato in corsivo, si evita di mettere in corsivo un'espressione già racchiusa tra virgolette.
- stili ammessi: tondo, corsivo, maiuscoletto;
- stili non ammessi: neretto, spaziato e sottolineato (salvo casi eccezionali, da concordare di volta in volta);
- parole straniere: in tondo tutte le singole parole entrate nell'uso comune della lingua italiana (web, leader, équipe etc.), in corsivo tutte le altre e i modi di dire (fil rouge, borderline);
- latino: in corsivo la singola parola o la citazione breve.
- Il punto in alto contrassegna caduta di consonante o assimilazione fonosintattica: i-libro, co-llui (ma a llui, da nnoi ecc.).
- Si raccomanda l'uso dell'accento acuto, grave e circonflesso negli omografi.

Punteggiatura

- Si raccomanda di lasciare sempre uno spazio dopo i segni , ; . : ? !
- Il trattino (-), usato per scrivere termini composti da più parole (esempio: Fox-terrier), non prevede lo spazio né prima né dopo.
- Il trattino lungo (—) è usato principalmente tra numero di pagine: Sergio Bozzola, “Lettura stilistica di Paradiso XIV,” Rivista di studi danteschi 20 (2020): 73–96.
- Il trattino più lungo (—), è usato per aprire e chiudere un inciso, e non è preceduto e seguito dallo spazio.
- I punti di sospensione hanno uno spazio tra loro: (. . .)

Titoli, capitoli e paragrafi

- Il titolo dell'articolo andrà posto a inizio testo, centrato; il nome dell'autore (o degli autori) andrà posto sotto il titolo e in maiuscoletto.
- Il primo rigo del primo paragrafo è con rientro.

Citazioni

- La Commedia deve essere citata secondo un'edizione critica standard italiana del testo. Attualmente, sono consigliate quelle di Giorgio Petrocchi (Milano: Mondadori, 1966–67; 2^a ed., 1994) o di Federico Sanguineti (Firenze: SISMEL, 2001).
- La rivista non include traduzioni dei testi italiani di Dante, a meno che non vi sia una ragione speciale ad locum. Estratti da testi latini, tuttavia, devono essere tradotti nel testo corrente, con il testo originale fornito nelle note.
- Includere uno spazio singolo su entrambi i lati della barra (ad esempio, "la quale è sì 'invilita, / che ogn'om par che mi dica: 'Io t'abbandono,'").
- Le virgolette doppie (" ") vanno utilizzate per racchiudere le citazioni; le virgolette singole (' ') sono necessarie per le citazioni all'interno delle citazioni.
- In generale, le citazioni più lunghe di novanta parole dovrebbero essere formattate come una citazione in blocco, rientrate e separate da uno spazio sopra e sotto. Questo non si applica alla poesia, che può essere formattata come una citazione in blocco a discrezione dell'autore.

Citazioni bibliografiche

DS utilizza note a fine capitolo. Non è necessario includere una bibliografia oltre alle note a fine capitolo; tuttavia, gli autori devono indicare nel primo riferimento tutte le informazioni relative alla pubblicazione, compresa l'edizione e la casa editrice dell'opera citata, eventuali informazioni sulla serie e così via.

Dopo il primo riferimento bibliografico completo, abbreviare con autore e titolo breve per i successivi riferimenti alla stessa opera.

Esempio:

- Citazione completa:
Christian Moevs, The Metaphysics of Dante's Comedy (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2005), 164.
- Citazione breve:
Moevs, The Metaphysics, 164.
- Per il luogo di pubblicazione, se più di un luogo è indicato nella pagina del titolo, utilizzare solo il primo.
- IMPORTANTE: Non è ammesso l'uso delle seguenti notazioni:

- o s. e ss. o sg. e sgg. (per seguente e seguenti); l'intervallo di pagine deve essere completo.
- o et passim o pass. (per indicare che l'argomento cui ci si riferisce è trattato in vari luoghi dell'opera citata),
- o Ibidem o ibid. (per rinviare alla stessa opera e alla/e stessa/e pagina/e citate subito prima)),
- o Ivi, Id. o lid. (per indica l'autore o autori citati subito prima)
- o IID. = IIDEM (per indicare autori citati subito prima).
- o I nomi di battesimo degli autori citati vanno citati per intero e non abbreviati.

Articoli per il Forum

Il Forum è un supplemento speciale in alcune edizioni della rivista che presenta saggi invitati in dialogo su un argomento legato all'opera o al contesto di Dante.

I saggi per il Forum sono tipicamente di 4000-6000 parole. La decisione finale sulla lunghezza sarà presa in consultazione con il curatore del Forum.

Gli articoli devono utilizzare note a fine capitolo e seguire le convenzioni di cui sopra.

Quando si cita un altro autore all'interno del Forum, si utilizza l'indicazione seguente:
"Vedi Nome dell'autore, titolo dell'Articolo, nel presente volume, xx–xxx."

Guidelines for Forum Submissions

The Forum is a special supplement in some issues of the journal featuring invited essays in dialogue on a topic related to Dante's work or context.

Forum submissions should typically be 4000–6000 words. The final decision about word count will be made in consultation with the Forum editor(s).

Forum essays should use endnotes and follow the Dante Studies Style Guide conventions.

When citing another author within the Forum, use the following indication: See Author Name, Article Title, in the present volume, xx–xxx.

Guideline for Submitting Images

Authors are responsible for obtaining high resolution quality images for publication, in addition to securing all necessary publishing permissions. DS highly recommends initiating permission requests as soon as an article is accepted in order to prevent article publication delays.

For new submissions, images should be embedded in a lower resolution file within the essay, in order to facilitate the review process.

For accepted essays:

Please submit color images whenever possible. NB: images will appear in black and white in the print edition of Dante Studies and in color in the digitized edition published on Project Muse.

Images should be submitted separately as digital files in TIFF or JPEG format, and should not be embedded in the essay. The minimum resolution for digital images is 300 dpi. Please indicate the location of images within the text in bold, e.g. (<Figure 1> Place approximately here).

If sharing images: Please send images via Dropbox, Google Folder, or other file-sharing platform via email to dantestudies@gmail.com. Follow this format for naming digital image files (using the author's last name): Author_Image001, Author_Image002, etc.

Image Captions

Images should be accompanied by a caption that identifies all relevant information including, for example, work title, artist name, date, location, material, and size. A short narrative description may also be included.
